Types of grants programs

Employee-nominated grants

Employees nominate recipients to receive grants from their employer. Recipients may be charities, community organisations as well as individuals, depending on the client's needs.

Employees typically nominate recipients with which they volunteer or have a close connection, which is why these grants are particularly effective at engaging staff and fostering a sense of collective effort.

External applications

Charities and/or community organisations apply directly to receive a grant. Companies typically focus their charitable grants programs in one or two focus areas, with a dedicated annual grant distribution budget.

// Over the past 5 years, Good2Give has enabled over 45 grants rounds, delivering almost 2,000 grants to community causes, worth around $10.1 million.
